

Policy on Handling of Good Till Date (GTD) Orders

- A Good Till Date (GTD) order is a type of order placed on the trading platform that remains Active until a specified expiration date. Unlike immediate or day orders that expire at the end of the trading day if not executed, GTD orders persist in the market until they are either executed, cancelled by the trader, or the specified expiration date is reached. This type of order allows traders to specify the duration for which their order remains valid, providing flexibility and control over their trading strategies.
- GTD orders can be placed via the Savashare 2.0 Mobile App, Swift Trade (Web version), Power Trade (Desktop version), or by contacting CRM.
- GTD orders will remain active in the system until 365 days from the date of the order placement, Post completion of 365 days, order will get cancelled by the system.
- GTD order placement is subject to available of sufficient buying limit/holdings being maintained in your account. If the order is placed during market hours, buying limit/holdings are immediately validated. If placed after-market hours, buying limit/holdings are validated when the market opens, and the order is sent to the exchange. If the order is rejected, it can be viewed in the Surveillance failed Report.
- If the price of a GTD order falls outside the DPR (Daily Price Range), the exchange will reject the order when it sent to the market during the day, but the GTD order status will remain ACTIVE. If the exchange changes the price range during the day, a new order will not be sent, as the original order for the day was already rejected.
- After 8:45 a.m. if the status of GTD order shows "XMITTED" in the GTD order book then it cannot be modified or cancelled. Changes can only be made once the order moves to the open order book.
